LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW INFORMATION MEMO

NOVEMBER 27, 2023

New York Extends Statute of Limitations for Filing Claims of Unlawful Discrimination with the Division of Human Rights

On Nov. 17, 2023, Gov. Kathy Hochul signed Senate Bill S.3255, which amends Section 297 of the New York Executive Law by extending the statute of limitations for filing complaints of unlawful discrimination with the Division of Human Rights (DHR) to three years.

Prior to this change, the law provided a three-year statute of limitations only for claims of sexual harassment and a one-year statute of limitations for all other claims of unlawful discrimination. As a result of this amendment, all complaints of unlawful discrimination must be filed with the DHR within three years of the alleged discriminatory practice.

The new statute of limitations will take effect on or about Feb. 15, 2024, and will apply to all unlawful discriminatory practice claims that arise on or after the effective date.

The extension of the time to file administrative complaints of unlawful discrimination is yet another example of the state's efforts to strengthen employee rights and protections. Employers will likely see an increase in the number of complaints regarding discrimination in the workplace. Employers should be sure to consult with legal counsel to prevent and address any claims of unlawful discrimination.

If you have any questions about the information presented in this information memo, please contact Gianelle M. Duby, any attorney in Bond's labor and employment practice or the Bond attorney with whom you are regularly in contact.

Bond has prepared this communication to present only general information. This is not intended as legal advice, nor should you consider it as such. You should not act, or decline to act, based upon the contents. While we try to make sure that the information is complete and accurate, laws can change quickly. You should always formally engage a lawyer of your choosing before taking actions which have legal consequences. For information about our firm, practice areas and attorneys, visit our website, www.bsk.com. Attorney Advertising. © 2023 Bond, Schoeneck & King PLLC.

